About Us

The California Intersegmental Articulation Council (CIAC) is a California 501(c)(4) nonprofit association whose mission is to promote the continuing improvement of articulation between the segments of higher education in California.

Built on a longstanding tradition of collaboration among California's articulation officers, CIAC connects member institutions, system offices, and academic senates to address articulation, transfer, and curriculum issues.

Executive Board & Leadership

CIAC is governed by a Board of Directors responsible for the supervision, control, and direction of the Association.

Leadership includes the:

1. Chair
2. Vice Chair
3. Treasurer
4. Secretary
5. At-Large Directors (4)
6. Regional Directors (9)

The Officer's Executive Committee consists of the officers and acts on behalf of the Board between Board meetings. Directors and volunteer leaders serve approximately two-year terms and support CIAC's statewide mission.

Membership Benefits

Membership connects institutions and professionals working to strengthen articulation and transfer across California.

-  Access to regional and statewide meetings and professional development sessions
-  CIAC web resources and communication channels for articulation and transfer questions
-  New member mentoring and peer support
-  Regular updates related to state, local, and national issues
-  Professional development and volunteer opportunities
-  CIAC Handbook and best practices for articulation.

CIAC History

California has a history of articulation efforts to support student transfer dating back to 1919. In 1984, The Articulation Council of California was formed. In 1993, articulation officers from all higher education segments met and voted to create the California Intersegmental Articulation Council. Since then, CIAC has grown into a vital organization that is now the primary resource for the exchange of articulation information.
